The teachers and community members are: Janice and Jack Riordan, Cheryl DeLong, Cassie Rubly, Terri King, Angie Sinnott, Greg and Ona Moore, Sonya and Brian Sava, Susan and Jerry Davis, Julie Davidson, Angie Ramsey, Maureen Irwin, Julie Sektan. Thanks also to Mark Yurovchak for helping schedule the games with the landing craft utility schedules and making that a smooth process. Kommol Tata!

New security idea

So now it has become illegal to carry a lighter aboard an American airliner. I'm all for it, as it coincides with my proposition that everyone should have to check in naked and remain that way for the duration of the flight. That way there would be no need for pat down searches or having minimum wage security personnel request that you remove your flip flops to assure that you aren't hiding an explosive device between your toes. I think, as an added precaution, that everyone's teeth should be checked to rule out the possibility of a hidden camera that could record any flaw in security, thereby giving the Axis of Evil the upper hand. Of course, larger blankets would have to be supplied during the flight. The standard 2-foot by 3-foot blanket now supplied may not afford ample body coverage. Paperclips should also be banned. A common paperclip bent at a 90-degree angle and slightly elongated could serve as an effective eye gouge. These terrorists are very inventive. They make 007 look like a rank amateur. The TSA is justified in banning all manner of incendiary device from body and baggage. I feel safer already in my investment in a lighter kiosk near the taxi stand at Honolulu International.

Air Marshall Islands aircraft experiences non-routine landing incident on Kwaj Thursday

By Mig Owens
Assistant Editor

Thursday night, Air Marshall Islands Flight 559 made a safe emergency landing on Kwajalein. According to a United States Army Kwajalein Atoll press release, the flight from Enewetok Atoll was carrying nine passengers and three crew members.

On board the flight were several Republic of the Marshall Islands senators and the U.S. Ambassador to the Republic of the Marshall Islands, Greta Morris. No one was hurt and an investigation is being conducted into the cause of the incident.

According to Andrew Havard,

Airport Operations department manager, at approximately 8:30 p.m., the aircraft declared an emergency.

"They were unable to lower their nose landing gear. After several over flights and after trying various things, they finally had to make the decision to land with the nose gear up," Havard said.

At approximately 9:20 p.m., the aircraft landed safely with no injuries.

"Emergency responders were in place and all necessary actions were taken to ensure that the aircraft passengers were safe and secure," Havard said. "Emergency procedures are in place for this and other types of events. The crew of the aircraft did an excellent job in bringing that aircraft down."

The non-routine landing brought out first responders such as Fire Services, which sounded the island's horn, the Kwajalein Police Department and Medical/ambulance services.

The Federal Aviation Administration Tower was heavily involved, and Havard said that heavy equipment was brought on scene to assist with moving the aircraft once on the ground. Also on the scene were Airport Operations handlers along with USAKA personnel and other Kwajalein Range Services departments, as secondary responders.

"Everybody did an excellent job," Havard said.

Shuttle van service going away

Kwajalein community bus service introduced

By Mig Owens
Assistant Editor

Starting Tuesday, Kwajalein residents may opt to use the bus for a trip downtown, to hospital appointments, to the airport or even to Camp Hamilton for a Sunday outing.

Provided by Kwajalein Range Services Automotive Services, the bus will provide service to all residents and visitors. It will run seven days a week, 12 hours a day with the daily route starting at 6:30 a.m. and terminating at 6:30 p.m. at the Dock Security Check Point.

Catalyst for the move is the recent reduction of many United States Army Kwajalein Atoll transportation assets, requiring alternative transportation measures.

"The system is designed to support ongoing personnel island transportation requirements with a shrinking number of automotive assets," said Tolis Kageorgis, Automotive Services Manager.

Among the operations that will no longer be in service is the shuttle bus. "All shuttle bus services will be discontinued except for baggage pickup from the terminal on continental United States commercial flights for island residents," Kageorgis said.

On Kwajalein, one primary bus will operate 12 hours a day, seven days a week and a second bus will run during peak hours five days a week. The existing bus stops are as noted on the Community Bus Service Route Map. During inclement weather, all attempts will be made to pick up passengers along the route, according to Kageorgis. The service will alleviate the need for Roi residents coming to Kwajalein to walk, borrow a bike or phone a friend to get to the clinic, according to Conny Livai, Supervisor Central Motor Pool. "With the community bus service, individuals will arrive at the air terminal, catch the bus to the clinic and return in the same manner," Livai said, adding that workers without administrative vehicles will be able to move around the island, attend a meeting, etcetera, by taking the bus.

"This new service will not only ease the pain caused by lack of vehicles, additionally it provides all island residents and visitors a transportation alternative to the bicycle," Kageorgis explained.

According to Automotive Services, the Kwajalein Island Bus was discontinued in 1994 for lack of passengers. Automotive personnel will be keeping ridership statistics in order to adjust future support to meet demand.

Route maps will be posted at each bus stop and will be available at the Automotive Central Motor Pool located in Bldg 808.

"We are excited to be able to provide this additional service to everyone on the island," Kageorgis said.

Crew invites passengers to share adventurous lifestyle

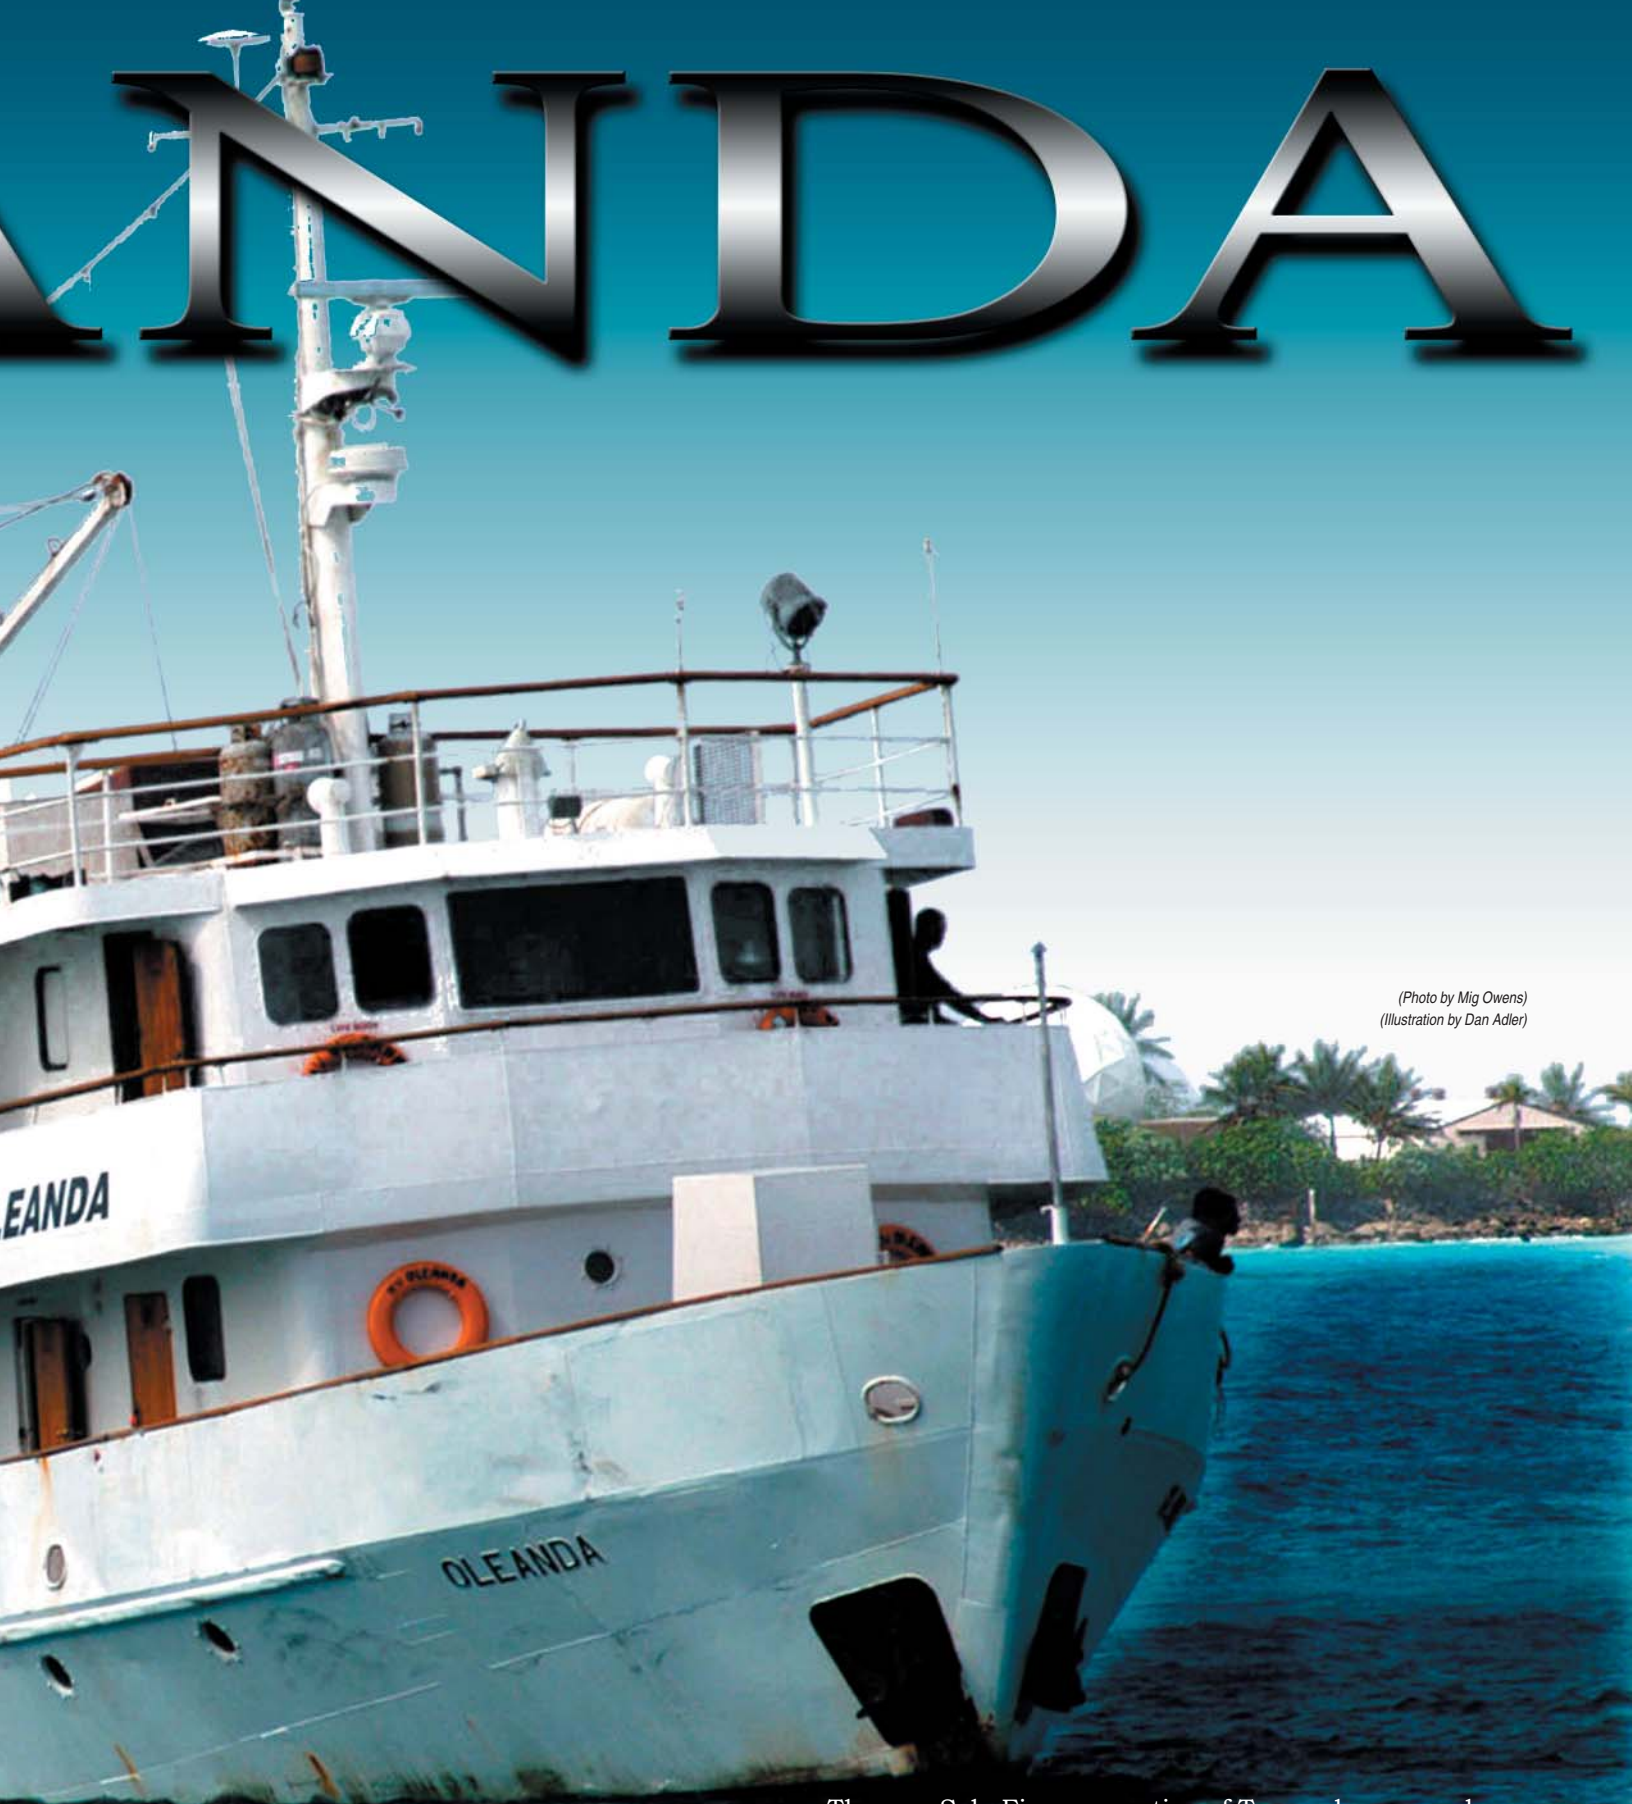

By Mig Owens
Assistant Editor

Kwajalein residents were treated to an open house aboard the M.V. Oleanda Wednesday to meet the crew and tour the 130-foot vessel.

The crew represents Tonga, Fiji, Australia, the Marshall Islands, America and Europe, among others – making the first and only live-aboard in the Marshall Islands a true melting pot.

Simeon Flaherty, marine engineer, said he likes the combination of doing what he enjoys – being the ships master, navigating, organizing the crew, managing and being an engineer – and the lifestyle that allows for adventure and diving.

As a newcomer, Flaherty is in the minority, but the Australian who came to the Oleanda from Fiji said, “It’s becoming home now.”

On board the Oleanda, longevity is more the norm.

Thomas Sele Finau, a native of Tonga, has served as chef for almost seven years. Also from Tonga is hostess in charge of hotel services, Lini Hautau, who has called the boat home for four years.

With four dive instructors and nine guest cabins, divers can live aboard the Oleanda and accomplish three to five dives in one day, said Julie Hodson,

"Because most outer atolls are virgin reefs, the Oleanda is a huge opportunity for true adventure and pristine diving. Very few people dive these waters. Fish are curious and not afraid of you," Hodson said.

Oleanda was one of six vessels of its kind built to travel through the waters of Yasawi in Fiji, according to Flaherty. It was built in 1974 and modified in 1989. The boat is operated by Rongelap Expeditions, is owned by Rongelap Atoll local government and Pacific International, Inc., but is considered a Marshallese business.

According to the United States Army Kwajalein Atoll Legal office, the command has approved a request from the M.V. Oleanda to visit Kwajalein for the purpose of offering dinner and recreational cruises in the near future. These events are not sponsored by USAKA or by KRS. The community should take note that the Oleanda is a non-U.S. flagged carrier which is not obligated to conform to the same maritime safety standards that are required for U.S. flagged vessels. For more information, the Legal office asks that residents check the downtown community bulletin board.

As one of 14 crew members who live in close quarters aboard the boat, Flaherty said he recognizes that even on a beautiful island, such as Kwajalein, there is a likelihood of people going 'stir crazy.'

For Darryl Hodson, working on the Oleanda gives him the opportunity to travel to remote atolls. "We're the Jacques Cousteau of the Marshall Islands," he said. "It's a stressful, busy life, but it's a good one - and fun too."

Seed of Chucky (R), When the notoriously evil Chucky doll and his lover gave birth, they had no idea that their spawn would grow up to be a peace-loving kind of guy; however, that's exactly what Glen turns out to be: a gentle soul who is horrified at what he has been told about his family. After hearing the news of a film being made about his parents' murderous legacy, Glen sets off for Hollywood, where he promptly brings Chucky and Tiffany back to life. Far from diving into doting fatherhood, Chucky is seriously disappointed in his son's lack of inherent evil and tries his best to impart his vast knowledge of all things malevolent before Glen becomes some sort of do-gooder. Elsewhere, Tiffany finds that she will be played by Jennifer Tilly in their movie and doesn't hesitate to let her son in on their family's most cherished tradition — killing sprees.

Lemony Snicket's A Series of Unfortunate Events (PG), The best-selling series of subversive children's books from author Lemony Snicket (aka Daniel Handler) come to the screen in this black comedy for the whole family. The Baudelaire siblings — gadget freak Violet (Emily Browning), bookworm Klaus (Liam Aiken), and baby Sunny (Kara Hoffman) and Shelby Hoffman) — were living a fairy-tale existence with their parents until they died in a fire that destroyed the family home. With few close relatives and a large fortune the children won't inherit until they reach adulthood, the Baudelaire children are left in the care of the peculiar Count Olaf (Jim Carrey), an out-of-work actor who would love nothing more than to get his hands on the kids' money. It doesn't take long for the children to figure out that Count Olaf is up to no good, and they try to steer clear of his various murderous schemes with the help of wildly paranoid Aunt Josephine (Meryl Streep) and snake-fancying Uncle Monty (Billy Connolly).

Harold and Kumar Go to White Castle (R), Directed by Danny Leiner, Harold and Kumar Go to White Castle follows the life-changing (and mind-altering) journey of Korean-American investment banker Harold (John Cho) and Indian-American medical-school candidate Kumar (Kal Penn). Both underdogs, Harold and Kumar decide to spend what would have been an otherwise uneventful Friday night satisfying an oddly intense urge for White Castle hamburgers. However, finding a White Castle proves a highly difficult task, and the two friends wind up on an epic road trip of deep thoughts, deeper inhaling, and enough half-baked, politically incorrect philosophizing to outweigh a White Castle value meal.
